Public comment during the meeting is not allowed on issues that are not on the agenda. If a future agenda includes a resolution to consider a broader policy of social responsibility there will be opportunity for public comment at that time. That's as much as I know as of now.

As I mentioned in my letter, it does make sense for Cambridge to have a consistent policy towards nations and corporations that systematically violate human rights. If there is room for citizen participation in drafting that policy, I would be honored to participate.
